A Message from our Chairman:

Since its inception, the goal of the Four Corners Oil and Gas Conference has been to provide information on new types of technology plus new and changing regulations that affect the oil and gas industry.

The Four Corners area, which is made up of Northwestern New Mexico, Southwestern Colorado, Northeastern Arizona and Southeastern Utah, contains the San Juan Basin which is one of the premier natural gas deposits in the United States. The San Juan Basin has contributed more than eight percent of the nation's current natural gas supply. Our area has produced more than 370 million barrels of oil and nearly 38 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. There are currently more than 20,000 producing wells with a prediction of up to 5,000 additional wells targeting natural gas in the upcoming years.

The United States Geological Survey projects possible undiscovered resources at more than 50 trillion cubic feet of natural gas, 148 million barrels of natural gas liquids and between 7 and 35 million barrels of oil.

On behalf of the Executive Committee, I would like to welcome you to the eleventh Four Corners Oil & Gas Conference. We hope you enjoy your stay and hope that you take some time to see what our beautiful Four Corners area has to offer.

Best regards,

Karen Ortega
